

Special Educational Needs Software Publishing

Salary negotiable

Widgit is a leading SEN software publisher based in Cambridge, UK. We require two committed and focussed individuals to implement our plans to develop the business at home and abroad.

SEN Publishing Director

A senior post for a manager/strategist with proven expertise in educational technology and a focus on SEN literacy development. An in-depth understanding of symbol-based communication is required and knowledge of both UK and USA education systems is desirable. The jobholder will have a track record of managing projects and teams in this field and will possess the personality and drive to build upon 20 years of success in this business.

SEN Product Consultant

A 'team leader' level role with a sales/marketing focus. This post demands solid expertise in SEN, particularly in the areas of IT, literacy development and communication; and knowledge of both UK and USA education technology markets would be an advantage. The jobholder will be able to demonstrate outstanding communication skills at all levels and the ability to work with a team to expand sales in new and existing markets, especially in the non-school sector.
