

Copyright conditions on distribution of materials containing Widgit Symbols (formerly known as Widgit Rebus Symbols)

1. Printed documents (books, materials, leaflets, posters etc.)
2. Documents to print where symbols are embedded in third party applications (e.g. PDF, MSWord and Clicker 5 files)
3. In signage and notices
4. On Websites, where the symbols are embedded into the web page (i.e. not using Webwide or other Widgit technology)

Symbols are copyright and cost a great deal to develop and maintain. We therefore have to ensure that people who use symbols pay an appropriate amount for their use.

Where the user already has a licence for the symbols, and the files can only be accessed through licensed copies of the software, there is no additional charge for the use of the symbols. E.g. a file for Communicate: In Print. Where the symbols are provided in a different form, either in print or electronically, including on a website, the customer must pay for the use of the symbols.

Small Scale Distribution

This covers distribution within a single authority/organisation, where the distribution is less than 500 copies, or the website is specifically created for a local group such as school or college.

In situations where the supplier is an individual, small organisation or small business, the resource provider is required to pay Widgit a royalty on the following basis:

Materials supplied in printed format

The rate is 2p per unique symbol used in the pack.

Files that are distributed electronically, (e.g. as PDF, MSWord)

The rate is 4p per unique symbol.

Symbols on websites

Small scale usage aimed at a local user group or members of a small organisation:
12p per symbol.

Symbols on signage

The rate is £20 per unique symbol used.

These rates are required whether the pack is sold or provided free by the creator. There is an allowance for small numbers of symbols that may be distributed without charge, detailed in the note below.

Allowance for non-chargeable distribution of documents containing symbols:

A small amount of printed or web based symbol documents may be provided without any payment provided the total number of symbols included in ALL resources, as a cumulative total, distributed by the organisation does not exceed 100 different symbols.

The exception to this is resources printed or shared amongst members of the local organisation that has purchased the symbol software (e.g. Communicate: In Print or Communicate: SymWriter). A single school, day-centre or hospital is regarded as the purchasing organisation and not the larger authority such as Local Authority or Health Authority. – e.g. pupils and teachers in a school are regarded as the members and in this instance, materials may also be sent home with the pupil. There is no restriction on the number of symbols that can be distributed between members of this effective purchasing organisation.

Widgit does not wish to prevent people with reading difficulties gaining access to materials and information, and there may be other circumstances where it is possible to negotiate reduced terms or permission to distribute with a zero royalty rate. Acknowledgement

Each resource must carry an appropriate acknowledgement on each separate document or individual sheet that might be used separately, prominently stating that the symbols are Widgit Symbols © Widgit Software 2009 (or the current year) plus the web address www.widgit.com. [Note: Widgit has changed the name of their symbol set from the Widgit Rebus symbols to Widgit Symbols. All acknowledgements are required to use the new inscription.]

Registration

All resource providers must register and complete an application form available on-line at www.widgit.com/support/symbols/copyright.htm

A paper version of this registration form can be obtained from

Widgit Software (copyright enquiries)

26 Queen Street,

Cubbington,

Leamington Spa CV32 7NA,

or by email from copyright@widgit.com

Enquirers outside the UK should email copyright@widgit.com for details of procedures and rates in other countries.

Large scale distribution

Distribution of materials on a larger scale, by commercially viable organisations, or where more than 500 copies of the resource are likely to be distributed, needs specific approval with prices on application.
