Reusing means using items over and over again.

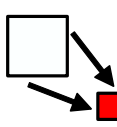

Reusing also means finding new uses for items.

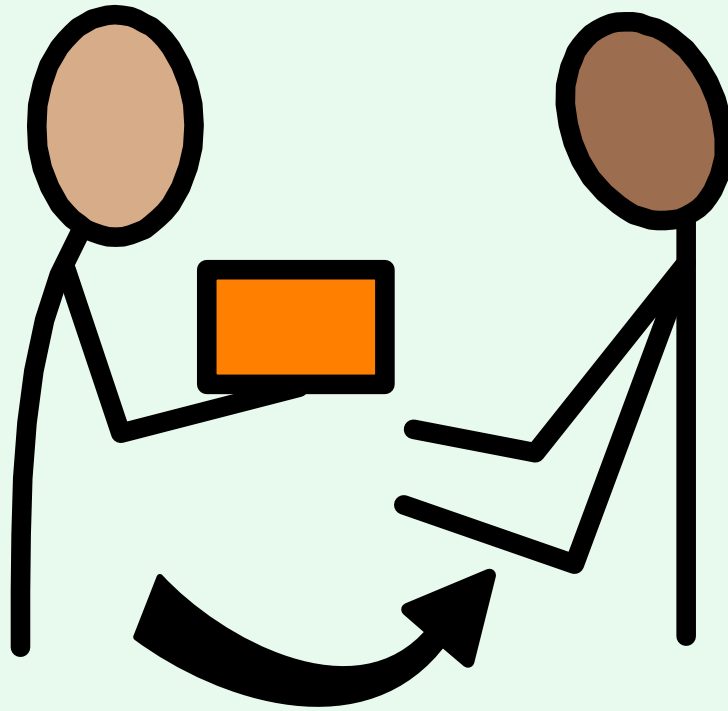

Reusing items saves energy and materials.

Reusing creates less waste which is good for the environment.

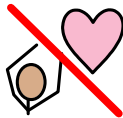

You can

donate

unwanted

items

instead of

throwing away.

You can

unwanted

items

to charity shops.

sell

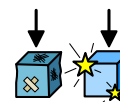

items

that are

in good

condition.

You can

find new

uses

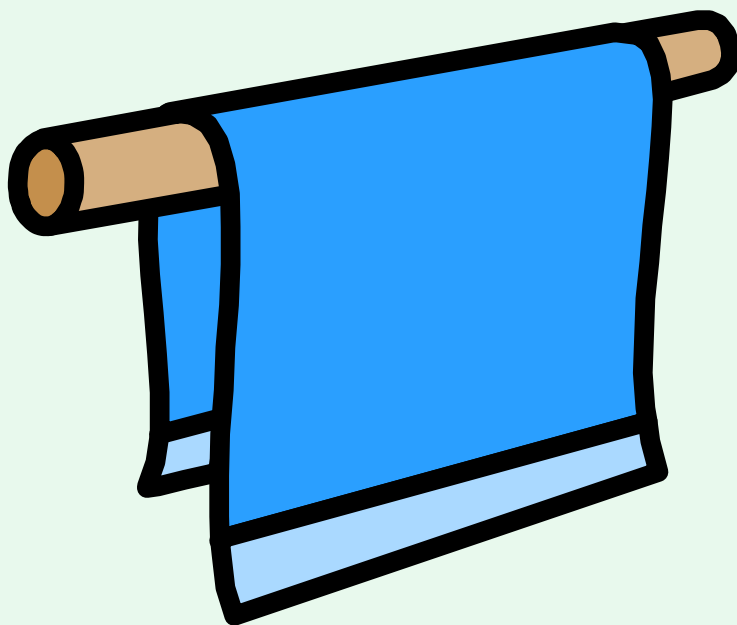

for unwanted

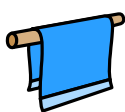

items

at home.

Reuse

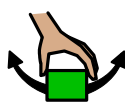

towels

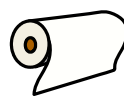

instead

of

using

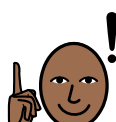

paper towels.

Buy

things

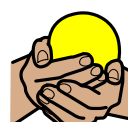

that are easy

to wash

and

look after.

This means they will last longer.

Don't

buy

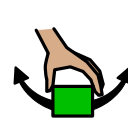

disposable

items

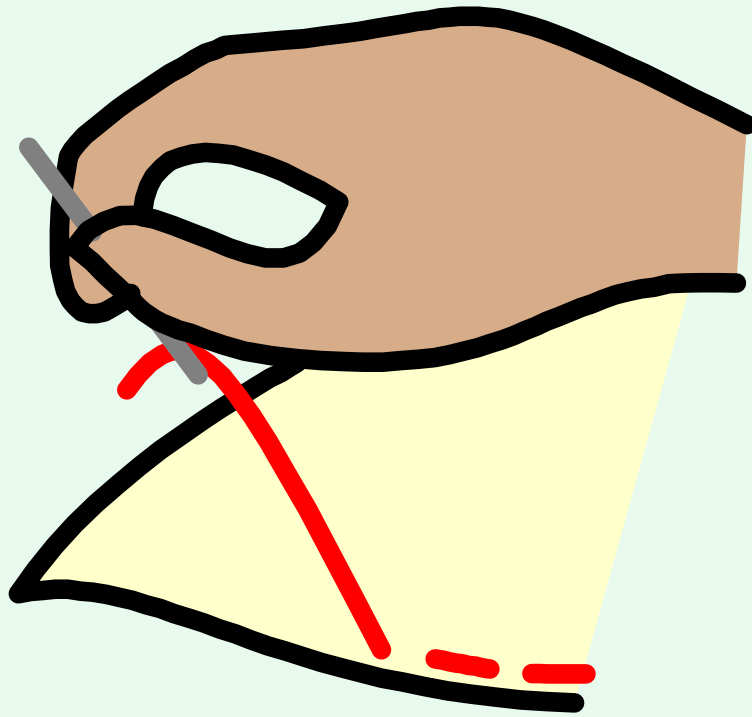

that are

only used

once.

clothes

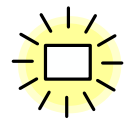

and mend them

buying

new ones.

Shoes

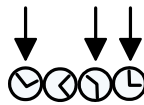

and

bags

can

often

be repaired.

Buy

good quality

items

that will

last longer.

Buy

refillable bottles

and

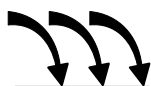

food containers.

A bag for life

can be used

many times

for shopping.

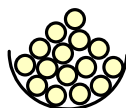

You can

bring your own

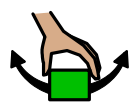

mug

to many

coffee shops.

Use

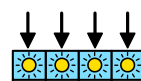

a lunch box

instead of

a plastic bag

every day.

the back of

old

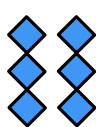

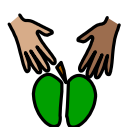

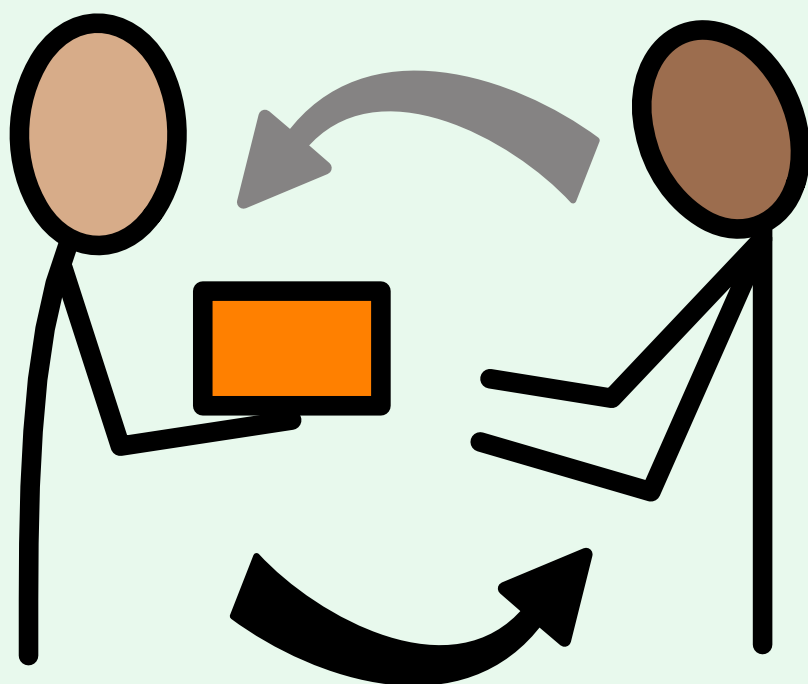

paper

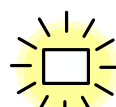

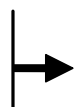

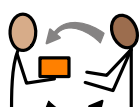

for notes

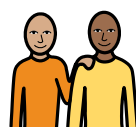

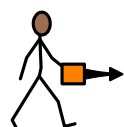

and drawing.

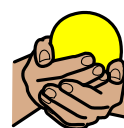

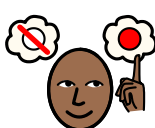

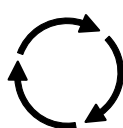

Sharing is a good way to reuse the same item.

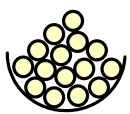

You can borrow from friends instead of buying new.

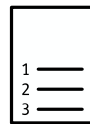

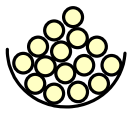

Lending and borrowing can help friends save money.

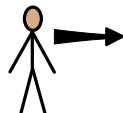

Reusing is a sustainable choice which helps to protect the planet.

Many towns have recycling centres.

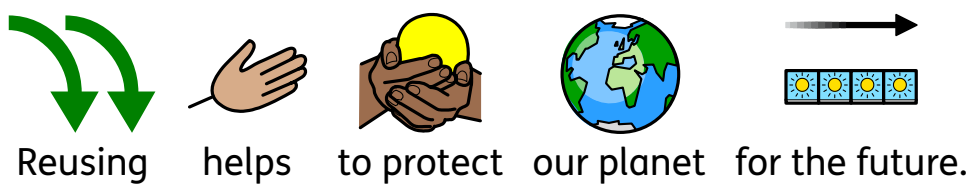

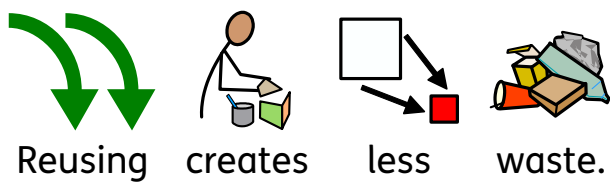

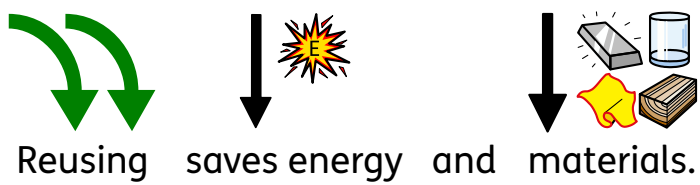

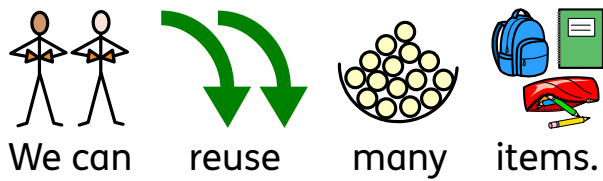

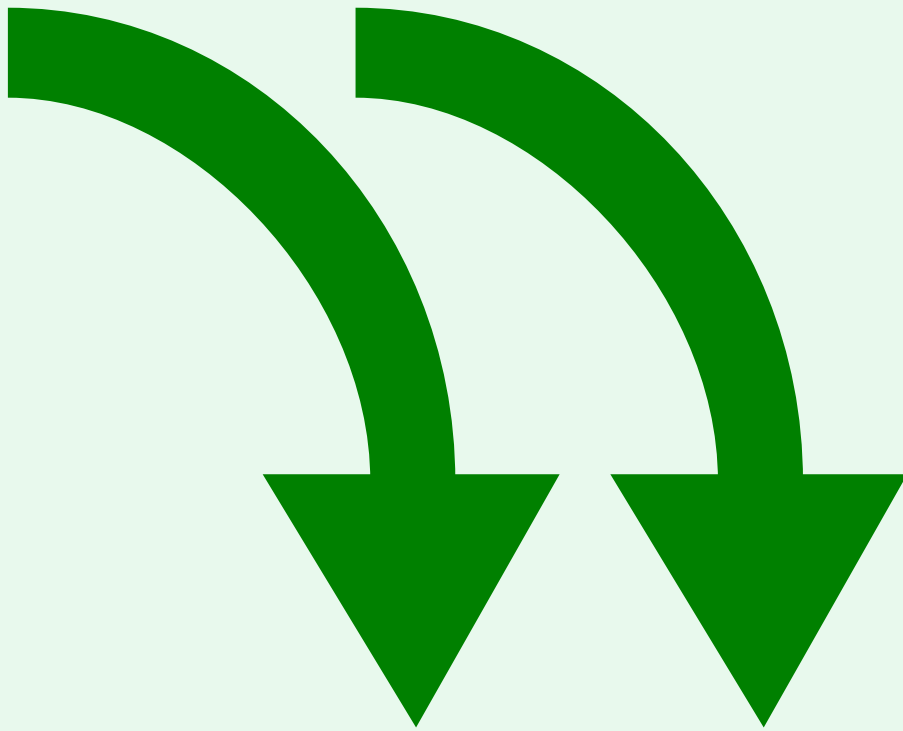

Many schools have recycling schemes.

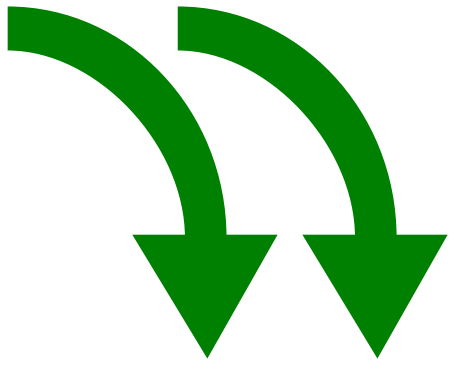

You can join community projects such as litter picking.

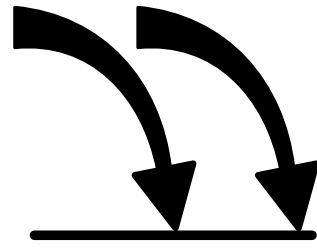

You can save money and buy from charity shops.
